

Where can I arrange to have a blood draw?

Listed below are some hospitals, clinics and private phlebotomy services who offer a blood draw. All the providers below are completely independent from Schell Genetics and their fees are not included within the genetic test fee. Fees must be agreed between yourself, the client, and the service provider. You must pay the provider directly and not Schell Genetics.

Schell Genetics will provide you with Instructions for sample collection and sample dispatch, so the phlebotomist knows which tubes to use and how the sample needs to be processed. You will also need to have the sample kit with you – CeGaT, the genetics laboratory, will provide you with the respective kit and assist you with the shipping arrangements. The cost of freight will be covered by CeGaT.

Please contact CeGaT directly for assistance with the shipping process and further details¹:

The blood draw should be performed ideally at the beginning of a week (Monday or Tuesday) to ensure the processing of the blood samples without any delay, and send to:
